CAPITAL HONORS NATION'S HEROIC DEAD

TRUE LEADERS OF TRUE MEN NATION'S POWER

Address at the Ports-

Yard.

FORCES THAT COUNT IN WAR AND IN PEACE

Character the Potent Force
Alike in Civil and Military Duties of the Citizen.

The Man Behind the Ballot

In the last analysis it is the man behind the ballot who counts most in civil life, just as it is the man behind the gun who counts most in military life.

Leader Must Have Force

Leadership is necessary in order that we may get really good results out of a high average of individual character; but without the individual character in the average individual the leadership by itself can avail but little.

Politics Made by
People

Nothing is cheaper than to say that the people are all right, but that the politicians are all wrong. As a matter of fact, politicians, will in the long run represent faithfully either the wishes or the indifference of the people; and if the people are indifferent the results are just about as bad as if they deliberately chose to go wrong.

Support
Army and Navy

Such a record should make every true American proud of the army and navy and should make every true American resolute to see that through our national authorities at Washington we make such provision by law for the maintenance, the support, and the training of the army and the navy that they shall ever stand in the forefront of their respective professions.

PORTSMOUTH, Va., May 30.—President Roosevelt in his Memorial Day address to the Army and Navy Union at the navy yard today said: This day is hallowed and sacred in our history, for on this day throughout the land we meet to pay homage to the memory of the valiant dead who fell in the great civil war. No other men deserve so well of this country as those to whom we owe it that we now have a country. Moreover, the men to whose valor we owe it that the Union was preserved have left us a country reunited in fact as well as in name. They have left us the memory of the great deeds and the self-devotion alike of the men who wore the blue and of the men who wore the gray in the contest where brother fought brother with equal courage, with equal sincerity of conviction, with equal fidelity to a high ideal, as it was given to each to see that ideal.

Men Who Deserve the Credit.
Moreover, it is a peculiar pleasure to speak today under the auspices of the

Lincoln at Gettysburg

It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth.

The heart of the National Capital is throbbing today in grateful memory of the heroism, sacrifices, and devotion of the gallant men of '61, who fought and died that their country might endure. The gentle hand of woman is strewing their graves with spring flowers, and, in patriotic song and speech, their deathless deeds are being described. The whole city is joining in this outburst of loyal sentiment. The banks and public buildings are closed for the day, as are many of the stores. The city wears its Sunday aspect. The streets were filled during the morning hours with gray-haired veterans, hurrying with all the sprightly alacrity of which old limbs and bodies are capable to the places of assembly of the posts to which they belong. The flag is displayed from houses in every square. Only in Congress does the activity still go on.

Parade of the Morning

The parade of the morning was a conspicuous feature of the day's observance. The line was formed at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Fourteenth street, and was headed by the Marine Band. The posts of the Department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, were escorted by the Sixth Battalion, N. G. D. C., and other patriotic organizations. At Arlington, at noon, a national salute of twenty-one guns, fired by one of the batteries of field artillery stationed at Fort Myer, announced the nation's sorrow for the nation's dead. The salute was fired in the reverent presence of a great multitude, who had made the pilgrimage from the city to witness this and the accompanying ceremonies. The exercises were under the direction of the Department of the Potomac, G. A. R., and the majority of the posts of the department with affiliated patriotic organizations of every character took part in the ceremonies. Wagon Loads of Flowers. Early in the morning the special committee of women in charge of decora-
